Foreword

To perpetuate the memories of Carver which we shall always cherish and revere and to record for ourselves and posterity a complete episode in the life of a growing institution has been our purpose.

It is equally difficult for a yearbook staff to produce a yearbook that measures up to each individual's ideals. Some will expect to look to the staff for a yearbook that neither insults their ability by seeking too little, nor discourages them by seeking too much. It was for this latter group that 1952 Buck was compiled.

If, after graduation nostalgia sets in, peruse this volume of words and pictures to rekindle the memories of yesteryear.

May these pages reawaken fond memories of the halcyon day spent within these portals.

Alma Mater

CARVER COLLEGE

*"A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or taste not the Pierian spring."*

Carver College has been known by the service its graduates render to their community. It is the hope and belief of the staff that the class of '52, will add increased lustre to this shining tradition.

Dedication

In grateful admission, sincere appreciation, and with profound congratulations for his endeavors in the establishment of Carver Junior College, we, the members of the class of 1952, affectionately dedicate this volume to our first director, Captain Vernon A. Buck, Jr. Upon assuming the duties as the first director of Carver College, he brought Carver a new feeling of stability and purpose, thus setting an enduring pattern for the continued growth of our Alma Mater. It is with special pride, respect and admiration that we pay sincere homage to one who has rendered outstanding services to Carver.

The Staff

In Appreciation

DIRECTOR SAMUEL AARON MOORE

There are men and classes of men that stand above the common herd; the soldier, the sailor, and the shepherd infrequently; the artist rarely, rarer still the clergyman; the director of a college almost as a rule.

Director Moore is a distinguished leader, and when this stage of man is done with and only remembered to be marveled at in history, he will be thought to have shared as little as any in the defects of our period, and most notably exhibited the virtues of the race.

Generosity he has, discretion tested by a thousand secrets, tact, tried in hundred embarrassments; efficiency exhibited in innumerable ways; and what is more important, Heraclean cheerfulness and courage.

We wish to extend special thanks and to express our genuine appreciation for the sincere interest he has manifested in us.

The Class of '52

ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

To those noble souls who pioneered the way in establishing this institution, to those who stand by in heroism and sacrifice to help when the going is hardest, to those graduates and former students who are serving in various fields in many parts of the country, led on by the elusive ideal yet never faltering, this page is respectfully dedicated. Encompassing these thoughts, we acknowledge the services and courtesies of our faculty advisor, Mrs. R. M. Cocroft, Delmar Publishers, Edward Portrait Studio, and all students, faculty and friends for their diligent and unrelenting cooperation.

CLASS PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO THE SENIOR CLASS

Class of 1952 we are now approaching the point of departure. Courage and perseverance have a magical talisman, before which our difficulties will disappear and our obstacles will vanish into air. A great deal of talent is lost in the world for want of a little courage. Every day sends to their graves obscure men and women whom timidity prevented from making a first effort; who, if they could have been induced to begin, would in all probability have gone great lengths in the career of game. The fact is, that to do anything in the world worth doing, we must not stand back shivering and thinking of the cold and danger, but jump and scramble through as well as we can. After two years of toil, the apotheosis in our various fields endeavor has attained. We must now strive to distinguish ourselves as exemplary citizens in our various communities.

Turnbo McEachin, Class President

Class History

FRESHMAN YEAR

In the waning days of September, 1952, thirty-nine hopeful souls set sail upon a course which we prayed would lead us to become successful students.

After selecting our tentative curricula, we went through the customary routines which included a newly instituted testing program. The tests revealed some of us to be geniuses and others borderline morons, but not a single ambition was dimmed.

With the preliminaries over, the class proceeded to organize itself and elect officers. Among them were: Clarence Bellamy, President; Floyd Brisco, Vice President; Laura Caldwell, Secretary; Wilbur Stinson, Treasurer; with Mrs. Cecelia Trottie as our very efficient Advisor.

Hours upon hours in laboratories studying our practice sets and conjugating verbs brought rewards to many of us who were placed on the Dean's list for maintaining an average of "B" or above.

We successfully presented our first play entitled "The Bride's Stand-In." This was one of the "first" for Carver College. Aside from our scholastic endeavors, the students enjoyed a number of class parties throughout the year. Fully cognizant of the reasons for Jack's being a dull boy, we pushed aside our books at the end of the fall quarter and got together to pursue the intricate steps of the Terpisichorean Art. The Senior Prom was, indeed one of the most striking events ever to be held at this institution.

At the year's end and casualties counted, most of us were jubilant to have won the first year of battle and avidly awaited the next year.

SENIOR YEAR

The assumed dignity that seems to come to every senior came to the members of the senior class when they resumed their studies in September, 1951.

It was then that we discovered that we had lost a few of our crew. Among them were Mrs. C. R. Trottie, Mr. Floyd Brisco (who was recalled by the army), and several of our young ladies. The latter loss may be considered a star in Carver's crown, since these young ladies were employed in key positions in Washington, D.C.

We have almost reached our journey's end. As we expend our last bursts of energy flitting back and forth, having pictures made and writing class speeches, we can truthfully say that we have enjoyed the past two glorious years, and trust that they will tend to inspire us to keep sailing to higher seas. Farewell, dear Alma Mater.

Class Prophecy

When the difficult task of prophesying the future of my illustrious classmates was allotted to me—you can imagine my consternation. How could I possibly even attempt to know anything about the future of such a large group of varied individuals? However, intuition finally prompted me to contact a crystal-gazer of international fame. Much to my surprise he did heed the request of one as insignificant as I and loaned me a valuable crystal for one hour, in which I could discern quite distinctly my classmates in the situations which I shall relate to you.

Up and down the corridors of Carver, talking and chatting with the members of the senior class, and looking into the crystal-gazer, how amazing and exciting to know that some day Raymond Henderson will become President of Howard University in Washington, D. C.; Grace Henderson will be studying toward her PH. D. at the University of Southern California.

On a tour of Paris, I walked into Robert Richmond, Jr., who had signed a contract with one of the most exclusive night clubs in Paris for six months and to my surprise Charles McRae was male vocalist. On my way back to the states, listening to the news over the Radio, flash—Lewis Clawson has just been appointed to succeed Robert Young as Ambassador to Russia. Walking down "F" Street in Washington, I met one of my very charming classmates, Gracie Pegues, who now holds a government position there in the Pentagon Building. She told me that Misses Hill and Cooper were there also. Talking about school days and other classmates, I was quite astonished to find:

Wilbur B. Stinson is now Chief Justice of the U. S. Supreme Court. Clarence Bellamy and James Alexander are now law partners. Turnbo McEachin and Wilbur Stinson, Scientists, are working at the Hydrogen Bomb plant.

William Grier is now the owner of Grier's Dry Cleaning and Laundry, accommodating more than 5,000 people weekly. Robert L. Harrison and Connie Patton are owners and operators of one of the most fabulous night clubs in Charlotte. Jesse Wise and Leonard Spencer have become the first Negro traveling salesmen for The Gulf Oil Company in America. Claud Boyce is traveling Auditor for North Carolina Mutual Insurance Company of Durham, North Carolina. Richard Stewart traveling Auditor for the Atlanta Life Insurance Company of Atlanta, Georgia. Edward Sims and John Russell are on the Staff at Atlanta University. Thomas Cuthbertson and John Hunter practicing medicine in the state of Ohio. Robert Brace, Dorothy Gabriel, and Bruce Johnson are out on the West Coast being screened for the movies. Other members of the class are married, most of them rearing families and doing well.

In this year of 1967, we find that Carver Junior College is under the fine leadership and direction of the very efficient and capable Mr. Samuel A. Moore, and is now one of the most outstanding Junior Colleges in North Carolina and in the year of 1968 Carver will become a four year accredited College.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

We the members of the Class of '52, being of unsound mind and ill health, do hereby bequeath our individual liabilities and collective assets as stated herein. To our Director, faculty, and the entire Carver community we leave our eternal best wishes and gratitude to everyone who has played a part in filling the past two years of our lives never-to-be-forgotten experiences.

To organizers and participants in a variety of extra-curricular activities, we bequeath the uncanny talent and organizational abilities of Clarence H. Bellamy who has been instrumental in the success of many extra-curricula activities here at Carver.

Robert Richmond, Clarence H. Bellamy, James Brown leave to Lavone Blackwell, William T. Reeder and Mary Brooks a great reputation and love of the theater, both of which we trust will be nurtured and fostered with genuine devotion.

John Houston wills his accounting work book to Louis Rudisill.

John Hunter wills his ability to master the English language to Helen Hamilton.

Wilbert B. Liston wills his dilatory tactics to John Williams.

William H. Johnson wills his ability to interpret Robert's Rules of Order to Shedrick Williams.

Turnbo McEachin wills his ability to preside in an authoritative manner to Pearly Kirkley.

Charles McRae wills his great "Carusoic" (coined by an English authority) voice to Richard White.

Connie Patton wills his ability to delve into the unknown to Claude Stephens. Grace Henderson wills her efficiency to Evelyn Stitz.

Robert L. Harrison wills his freedom from care to Bruce Johnson.

Charles R. Praylor wills his artistic ability to Willie Gunter.

Richard A. Stewart wills his accounting ability to Samuel Cunningham.

Wilbur B. Stinson wills his aggressiveness to Della Moore.

Willie Wilson wills his typing book to Margaret Thompson.

James W. Alexander wills his ability to organize to Cleon Nance.

Lewis E. Clawson wills his business ability to Harry Goins.

Thomas Cuthbertson wills his sincerity to Marcus Reeder.

Margaret Cooper wills to Lavone Blackwell her ability to be more on the quiet and sociable side of life.

James W. Gaither wills to James Grier his engineering ability.

Claude Boyd wills his dynamic personality to Forrest Davidson.

William Grier wills his romantic ability and cave-man technique to William Foard.

Raymond E. Henderson wills his intellectual keenness to John Russell.

Jesse Wise wills his mathematical ability to Ruben Ware.

Odell Hoover wills his reticence to Zorada Chambers.

James E. Stephens wills his zoology seat to Edward Harrison.

Edward Sims wills his pessimistic outlook on life to Rudolph Neely.

Leonard E. Spencer wills salesmanship ability to Alexander Pettice.

Edith M. Hill wills her sedateness to Amanda Gardner.

Robert Young wills his good will and happiness to all future freshmen at Carver.

Whereas we have bequeathed the foregoing possessions, we hereby affix our seal and signature, this first day of June, 1952.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT

The music class is under the competent guidance of Mrs. Carrie R. Quander. Students of the music class study almost every field of musical endeavor, including music theory, music history, voice, piano, orchestral instruments, and music education.

The objectives of the music class is threefold; to contribute to the student's cultural development; to undertake an important role in revitalizing creative activity in our unique field of indigenous music; and to motivate and stimulate scholarly research in this field.

ACTIVITIES

Throughout the years there have been various activities provided not only for educational purposes, but for our leisure and enjoyment.

The Musicales sponsored by the music department to augment our interest in music. The dramatic guild gave an elaborate presentation of "Trouble In Paradise". The Social gatherings at the college and away from the college will always be fondly looked upon.

By having participated in out-of-class projects we have gained invaluable skill, experience and knowledge.
